

Q3 Performance Review — WatchPro Enterprises

Confidential | Internal Document | July 2026

FADE IN: INT. CORPORATE BOARDROOM — DAY A sleek boardroom. Floor-to-ceiling windows overlook the Mumbai skyline. Around the table sit VIKRAM (45, CEO, sharp suit), MEENA (38, CFO, nervous), and RAJAN (52, Board Chairman, intimidating).

VIKRAM (slamming a report on the table) These numbers are a disaster, Meena. Revenue down 40 percent. Inventory bloated. The board wants answers. MEENA (sweating) Sir, the market conditions were unfavorable. The competitor launched a new smartwatch line and our Q3 sales took a hit. RAJAN (coldly) I don't want excuses. I want a turnaround plan. By next quarter, we either show profit or we start cutting heads. Starting from the top. VIKRAM stares at a sales chart showing a massive decline. The numbers read: Units Sold: 1,240. Target: 3,500. Gap: 2,260.

CUT TO: INT. VIKRAM'S OFFICE — NIGHT Vikram sits alone, surrounded by inventory reports and financial statements. His phone rings. It's his wife. VIKRAM'S WIFE (V.O.) Are you coming home tonight? VIKRAM (exhausted) Not tonight. The company needs me. He hangs up and stares at a photograph of his family. A single tear rolls down his cheek.

FADE OUT. END OF SCENE 4 Written by: Arjun Kapoor Script Version: Draft 3 Genre: Corporate Drama / Thriller Production: Silver Screen Films Pvt. Ltd. Note: All characters, companies, and financial figures in this screenplay are entirely fictional. Any resemblance to real business data is coincidental. This is a creative writing document, not a business report.