Customer Feedback and Observations

- Customers have expressed the need for a broader range of homeopathic products.
- The cleanliness of the store received commendations.
- There were complaints about the small Dettol handwash finishing too quickly, highlighting a potential for larger size offerings.

Conclusion and Recommendations

The business performed well during July, benefiting significantly from the monsoon season, resulting in increased sales for fever and hydration-related products. However, steps should be taken to improve inventory management to prevent stockouts and expired products. Additionally, considering customer feedback on product range expansion may enhance customer satisfaction and sales growth as the season transitions.

Recommendations:

- Increase stock of larger Dettol handwash bottles based on customer feedback.
- Consider a regular audit for expiration dates to mitigate customer complaints.
- Explore diversification into homeopathic products as per customer interest.

Maintaining a keen focus on both sales trends and inventory levels will be vital to sustaining growth in the upcoming months.
